PROF TAN SRI DATO DR MOHD AMIN BIN JALALUDIN

My first encounter with this man of great integrity and commitment to patients and university was in 1998 when I enrolled into the master's course in ENT at University Malaya. Friendly but very firm in his daily management of his students, patient care and running of the faculty and later the university. He was trained in the UK and USA and on completion of his training, he loyally served University Malaya till retirement. He focussed his energy towards training good ENT specialists and later on to raise the rankings of the university in the world.

Tan Sri Dato Dr Amin better known as Prof Amin at the department and faculty was my supervisor in my compulsory thesis presentation during the masters program. Without fail I had always kept in contact with him even when he was the Vice Chancellor of University Malaya.

I have learnt a lot of virtues from him and one of the most important teaching he taught me was: Always keep working hard in anything you believe its right and do not bother what others may say or think. His encouragement has made me what I am today.

I hope that Tan Sri will have a good retirement and he should continue to contribute to the younger generations to come.
